ABOUT US

OUR TEAM

Drawing on a history of more than three decades of practice from our Sydney and Darwin offices, our team of 20 Landscape Architects shares a commitment to bringing meaning and purpose to our landscapes, through projects that range from inner city spaces and places to remote indigenous communities.

Since joining Beveridge Williams in 2022, we have added creativity, expertise and additional services to extend our offer. With a Landscape Architecture and Urban Design team of 18 in Victoria, plus engineering, survey, water and planning expertise across Victoria and NSW, the execution of a project now becomes a seamless group effort.

OUR INSPIRATION AND MOTIVATION

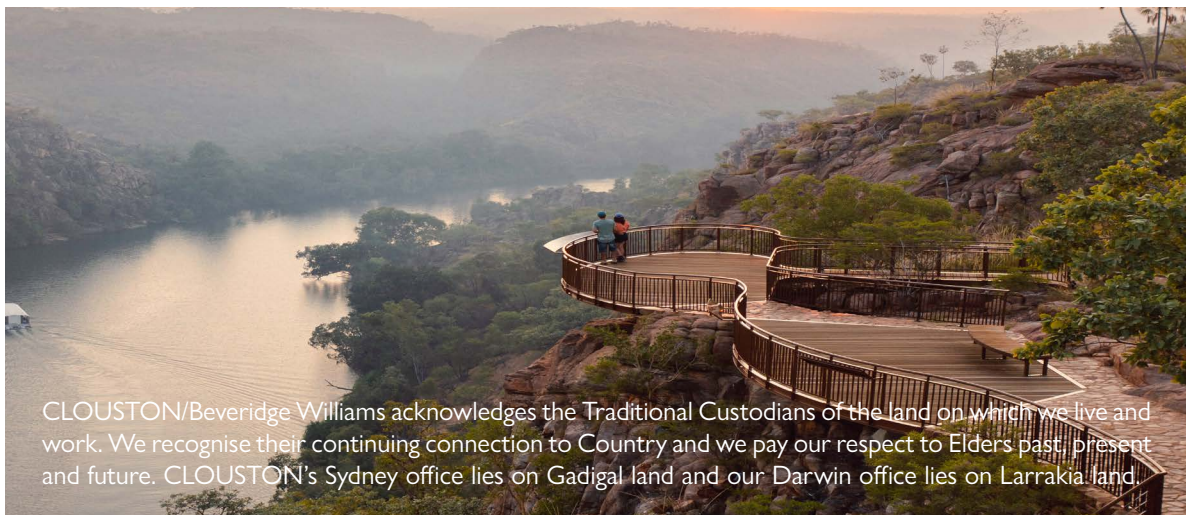

Our diverse team hails from a broad sweep of differing nationalities and cultural backgrounds. Yet together we share a bond of common purpose to better connect people to the landscapes in which they live and work; and in turn that those landscapes help foster a greater sense of connection between people.

Landscape as a Canvas Not a Frame

We see landscape as the essence of a place, not as a value-add. So we look to create landscape settings where new experiences and memories are generated by numerous users that we may never get to meet. And we shape those places to nurture a sense of wellbeing and connection that those people may not even be able to quite explain.

Landscape with Meaning, Place with Purpose

Whatever the project, this is our working banner - our go-to on every occasion. It informs our project inception, it gets brought to every stage review and it's the metric we use for final client handover validation. In essence, we ask ourselves, what is the story that defines this project? And how will the landscape meet the objectives of our client and the daily needs of its users?

CLOUSTON/Beveridge Williams acknowledges the Traditional Custodians of the land on which we live and work. We recognise their continuing connection to Country and we pay our respect to Elders past, present and future. CLOUSTON's Sydney office lies on Gadigal land and our Darwin office lies on Larrakia land.

THE WAY WE WORK

CREATIVE PARTNERSHIPS

We see our projects as joint ventures at every level with all of the partners in our work, from our clients and their stakeholders to community, consultants and contractors. Where that collaboration succeeds, then design excellence established at the outset can also be assured on 'opening day.'

A COUNTRY-FOCUSED APPROACH

Over more than 30 years our NT office has worked with First Nations stakeholders and communities in urban and remote landscapes. In NSW, the adoption of the Government Architects' 'Connecting with Country Framework' has been an important step for us, working regularly with First Nations consultants to bring together Indigenous Knowledge and Western Science in our designs.

EVIDENCE-BASED PLANNING AND DESIGN

While we've won many awards over the years, we avoid rhetoric and search for the evidence which demonstrates that our work will endure. As importantly, we revisit and critique our projects to learn what refinements we can bring to the next project.

USER FRIENDLY SERVICE

We make it our goal to be easy to work with. We know that all of our working relationships must be built on trust and that comes from delivering what we say we will do, when we say we will do it:

A 'No Surprises Approach'

You will not need to chase us! That's a bold statement, but all staff at CLOUSTON are committed to timely and clear communication. We will be on the front foot and our processes are entirely transparent, so our clients will know where we stand at any time on the program, budgets and deliverables.

Senior Presence Throughout

Our past and current clients will attest that we maintain Senior experience throughout the entire project. And behind those Seniors our Principals hold regular reviews in progress on all projects, supported by an internationally accredited Quality, Safety and Environment (QSE) protocol.

Principled Pragmatism

A strong and aspirational project vision and robust design principles are the foundations of all of our projects. But we are also pragmatic at heart and always look to ensure robust, enduring outcomes.
